

Play At The Park: Practice in the sound of P

We pronounce a word the way we hear it. We spell a word the way we pronounce it. Listening, seeing and modeling are key features in developing good reading and spelling habits. Play at the Park is a practice in the sound of P. Please, mother, can we go to the park? First, Polly, please eat all your pancakes. Polly said I suppose. Please pass the peanut butter. Play At The Park is a fun way to develop proper articulation habits. P is an early sound that is often mispronounced, but can easily be corrected with proper modeling and plenty of practice. Learning has never been so fun.
